What is DCHacks?

DCHacks (previously known as BlairHacks) is a hackathon hosted annually by DC metro area students. High school students across the world are challenged to bring their innovative ideas to life in the form of websites, apps, and other exciting projects. We feature workshops and mentorship from qualified professionals in all areas of computer science.

Our previous online iterations brought together over 105 virtual attendees from all around the world with over 30 project submissions. This year, DCHacks will be an in-person event in October 2025, and we're hoping to make it bigger and better than ever!

Our Mission

Our mission at DCHacks is to share our passion for computer science with high school students across the DMV area. DCHacks provides an unparalleled environment with resources that empower students to pursue their passions in the computer science field, collaborate with like-minded developers, and network with peers and professionals in the area. Sponsoring DCHacks is an incredible opportunity to promote computer science and engineering education and further the movement of student innovators.

Why we need YOU

Every year at DCHacks, we give away thousands of dollars in prizes, swag(t-shirts, stickers, etc.), subscriptions, and an invaluable amount of knowledge. To keep our hackathon FREE TO ALL STUDENTS, we rely on sponsors like you to help encourage the bright minds of the future of computer science!
